Stories of "Optimist" and "Eileen Lake"

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 10—The day on the steamer Corsican en route shipwrecked crew of the three-masted schooner Optimist, of Newfoundland, Eileen Lake was abandoned on the land, arrived here to-day on the afternoon of January 19th. Eighty steamer Corsican. Captain John Evans said that on the voyage from Spain, salt laden, in January day after day of storm was encountered. The vessel's sails and rudder were lost and she leaked badly. On January 26 a big sea smashed the lifeboats. The steamer City of Naples came up, but the weather was so stormy and cold that nothing could be done. She left informing the Optimist that another steamer was rushing to their assistance. On the 26th the schooner was completely waterlogged when the steamer Ampetio arrived on the scene. The crew were taken off and landed at Antwerp. They are on the route home now.

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 10—Tossed about on the Atlantic, suffering tortures from cold, hunger, thirst and fatigue for eighty hours during a terrific storm, and with death momentarily staring them in the face, was the experience of the crew of the two hundred ton schooner Eileen Lake, which sprang a leak below the waterline off the Newfoundland coast on January 19. George Forsey, Cook, died from exposure during the experience and was buried at sea. This was the story told by the Captain and crew of the vessel on arrival here to-day.

This is Canada's Law

And Now Scotland Hoisting the Red Flag in South Africa

Manifesto from the Scottish Home Rule Association

109 Hope Street, Glasgow, 13th January, 1922.

TO HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT.

We desire to congratulate His Majesty's Government upon the epoch-making settlement of the "Irish Question." For centuries Ireland has been an open sore in the body politic of the British people, and a term of reproach to us in every part of the world. Self-Government for Ireland, long delayed, and long overdue, is now an accomplished fact, and the creation of an Irish Free State with Dominion status is, in our opinion, calculated to remove, fully and finally, the causes of Irish political discontent, and is in accordance with the best traditions of British statesmanship. We welcome the new "Irish Free State" to the community of free British nations, in the confident hope that its inauguration will open up a new era of peace and prosperity for the people of Ireland.

The principle of Self-Government for the nations comprising the United Kingdom having now been conceded, it naturally follows that the question of Devolution in Great Britain at once arises. It is quite impossible to continue with our present Houses of Parliament as if nothing had happened. The withdrawal of the Irish members from Westminster, leaving Ireland unrepresented in the House of Commons, makes a profound, basic, and lasting change in the character and constitution of that Assembly. It ceases at once to represent the whole of the United Kingdom, and loses thereby its unifying and comprehensive character. Its proportions and balance are irretrievably disturbed and destroyed, and the predominance of the English members over those of the other nations represented in the House of Commons—in the past a source of irritation—is now overwhelming and in practice makes the new Parliament an English preserve. In these circumstances, we hold that the plain and bounden duty of His Majesty's Government is to formulate immediately a comprehensive scheme of Self-Government for the several nations of Great Britain; and in this connection we wish to press forward the claims of Scotland to control its own national affairs.

Scotland is a nation in every sense of the word, no less than Ireland, and her claims to Self-Government can no longer be overlooked. The Scottish people have been for a long period of time convinced of the justice and necessity of this principle, and in every Parliament for many years a majority of the Scottish members have been pledged to "Home Rule for Scotland." During the last decade the demand for Self-Government has strengthened enormously, and the vision of a Scottish Parliament sitting in Edinburgh, legislating for Scotland, has caught and held the imagination of the Scottish people. We have refrained from pressing our claims as actively as we might have done because of our belief in the priority of the claims of Ireland to Self-Government. As a necessary consequence of the Irish settlement we respectfully urge that it is now Scotland's turn to be considered. We, therefore, call upon His Majesty's Government to direct their attention immediately to this question of "Home Rule for Scotland," to give it precedence over every other political issue; to cease legislating for Scotland from Westminster, and to pass into law forthwith a measure of Self-Government suited to the needs and circumstances of Scotland and satisfactory to the Scottish people.

The Scottish Home Rule Association representing, as it does, every shade of political opinion, composed of individual members, and corporate bodies of all kinds, in every part of the country, puts forward this claim and appeal to His Majesty's Government in the full knowledge and conviction that we are giving expression to the desires of the great majority of Scottish men and women who are convinced that such a Scottish Parliament is essential, both for the efficient and economical management of purely Scottish affairs, and to enable Scotland to contribute most effectively to the common well-being of the LONDON, March 10—The situation in Johannesburg is most alarming. Reuters correspondent states. Strikers hoisted the red flags on the Town Hall to-day and voted to close every business by force. Commandoes of strikers are out in large bodies and the police are stationed at vantage points. Mob law rules in East and West Rand and ordinary activities are impossible in Johannesburg. Several more natives have died as a result of recent attacks by Commandoes. Twenty-seven were seriously wounded, chiefly from charges by shot guns, two were shot in cold blood outside the town compound and five died as a result of shooting at Primrose Mine alone. Commandoes are permitted by police to roam the streets with blazing revolvers and carrying all kinds of weapons. Premier Smuts has denounced the outrages whether by whites or blacks and promised strong measures to suppress the Hooligan element.

LONDON, March 10—The Saturday Review declares that Lloyd George has virtually resigned the Premiership for Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, who has the Premier's resignation in his pocket with power to use it when a suitable opportunity presents itself. The Premier has expressed the desire, the Review says, that the Irish bill should become law before the country is made acquainted with his decision. He will then advise His Majesty to send for Mr. Chamberlain, Sir Arthur Balfour having expressed his unwillingness to form an Administration.

IN LOVING MEMORY

MARY S. TORRAVILLE.

To the Editor:
Dear Sir—Please give me space in your widely read paper, the Advocate, to record the death of Mary Susanna, beloved little child of Walter and Bertha Torraville, Victoria Cove, who died 23rd. She was a bright and a dear little girl, only four years of age. She was only sick for a week. Mrs. Torraville also lost a baby boy, Cecil, in July. There are left to mourn the loss of the two little ones, father, mother, three brothers and two sisters.

The house, it is so lonely,
The empty chair and cot,
The sweet faces of Susie and Cecil
Will never be forgot.

A MESSAGE

BY WALTER WELLMAN

Here is a peculiar kind of maze. See if you can make it out. Start from the outside of the maze, and follow the paths. Use the same letter more than once if necessary.
Answer to yesterday's puzzle: Fold at A and B and you get; TELL ME WHEN I CAN SEE YOU FOR I AM LONESOME FOR YOU.

Her Reward OR Love's Recompense

CHAPTER XXXVI.
A Treacherous Deed.

"Somebody has fired a shot at her from yonder thicket and killed her," replied the youth with whom, at a moment or two before, she had been chatting so socially.

"No! don't tell me that!" cried the woman, in a voice of stern decision: "Give her to me, and then somebody go find George Wishington, quick."

But Rich would not relinquish her; he gathered her closer in his arms and seemed like one almost bereft of reason.

They collected shawls and cushions, making a rude couch, and then prevailed upon him to lay her down to discover how seriously she was injured.

He himself bore her to it, and laid her gently down, though he staggered like a drunken man under his light burden, and then sank weakly upon the ground beside the unconscious girl.

"It is of no use—she is dead! somebody has killed her," he said, in a hollow voice that smote every heart and thrilled it with a feeling of pity.

"She ain't dead, neither," retorted Miss Starkey, shortly, though she shook like a leaf as she bent over Annie and put her ear to her breast; "her heart's beating, and the good Lord won't take her from us, now—I hope—" but those last two words ended in a sob.

"Somebody get off this leather belt," she commanded, her practical common sense asserting itself, and she began to work vigorously toward Annie's restoration.

Grace Campbell, knowing just how the belt was fastened, knelt down, reached around the slight waist, and unclasped and removed it.

Her eye fell upon that quaint strong clasp as she did so, and she uttered a cry of terrified astonishment.

"See!" she cried, holding it up to view; and behold! there was a marked depression in it, as if a bullet had hit it, and then glanced off.

"By thunder! who's done this tarnation?"

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:
Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes:

"I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach; and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for anyone run-down and needing a tonic."

at thing? I'll find out, or my name ain't Josh Brown," energetically exclaimed the young man who had been honored by Annie's latest attention; and he darted away from the crowd and sped toward the thicket before mentioned, and whence the flash and report had seemed to proceed.

Rich eagerly seized the belt in his trembling hands and examined the clasp critically.

Then his face cleared and his chest heaved with a mighty throes of relief.

"I do not believe she is injured, after all," he said; "there has been a shot fired, but it hit this clasp and glanced off, and, I trust, has done no serious injury."

But the reaction caused by this discovery was so great that he came near becoming as helpless as Annie herself.

It was only for a moment, however. He braced himself against the weakness and lent all his will and aid toward the recovery of the unconscious girl.

Water had been brought, vinegar, too, from the table, while Mrs. Campbell never went anywhere without her aromatic spirits of ammonia, so that everything possible was done for her.

Success attended their efforts, and it was not very long before Annie began to revive, though it seemed an age to the anxious ones watching her.

At last the white lids unclosed, and she glanced around upon those frightened people, an expression of horror on her pallid face.

"Rich!" she called, faintly. "Here, my darling!" and he bent over her in an agony of suspense.

"Oh, I am so glad! That dreadful man!" she murmured, incoherently, while she grasped her lover's hand and clung to it with spasmodic force, shuddering from head to foot.

"Did you see him? Who was it?" Rich cried; but she did not hear him; she had fainted again, and they were alarmed lest that ball, in glancing from the clasp, had penetrated her body.

But Miss Starkey did not relax her efforts, and the fair girl soon revived again.

"Annie, tell me, are you injured?" Rich questioned, anxiously, as her eyes sought his face again with a troubled expression.

"No, I do not think I am wounded, though I am sure something hit me and gave me a dreadful shock. I am only frightened—so frightened! Don't leave me, Rich," she pleaded, as he changed his position after a little; "he may fire at you again!"

"Fire at me?" he cried, astonished. "Who fired at me?"
"That man—Crouch!"
Rich started violently, and appeared greatly disturbed at this unlooked-for intelligence.

"Are you sure? Did you see him?" he cried.
"Yes, I had been watching some one among those bushes—a man—I thought he acted strangely, creeping out a little way and looking toward us, then drawing back again, as if fearful of being discovered. Then I saw him lift something to his eye and point it at you. I knew him then, but there was no time to tell you, so I threw myself in front of you to save you. I felt a shock, and that was all I knew."

The whole company were thrilled by her words, while Rich felt every bit of strength forsake him again.

She had ignored self entirely—had risked her own precious life to save his; and that blessed clasp, which had proved such an annoyance in the past, had saved them both.

It was a frightful story, and as that eager crowd listened to it, their faces grew grave and pale, while a feeling of awe took possession of every heart as they realized how near their delightful merry-making had come to ending in a horrible tragedy.

They were all becoming a little more composed, when they were suddenly startled again by a shout.

"Halloa, there! We've got him! we've got him!" called a voice; and, turning toward the sound, they saw the youth who had darted away in search of the mischief-maker returning, accompanied by a fine-looking man, and leading their captive between them.

Annie shivered and covered her face with her hands to shut out the sight of him, while Rich recognized at once his old enemy, the carpenter.

A bitter oath burst from the man's lips as he was led forward and was confronted by the handsome young architect, who, he saw at a glance, was uninjured.

"Gosh!" burst out George Washington Starkey, as the man's voice fell upon his ears, and those nearest to him fairly jumped as the startling explosive broke from him. "It's the very same scamp who chloroformed her!"

The excitement now was even greater than before, and everybody crowded around to learn the particulars of the capture.

The youth, who had called himself Josh Brown, explained that he had noticed a man running away immediately after the report of the pistol, and as soon as he could collect his wits he had started in pursuit.

Upon reaching the top of the knoll, where the man had been skulking among the alder bushes, he espied him just disappearing in the woods beyond.

At the same moment he saw a gentleman—evidently a sportsman, for he had a gun and game-bag in hand—coming from that direction and only a short distance from the fugitive.

"Head him off! Head him off!" shouted the pursuer, gesticulating wildly. "Don't let him get away! He's just shot a girl!"

At these startling words the gentleman seemed to take in the situation instantly, and casting aside both gun and game-bag, he joined most heartily in the chase.

He was swift of foot, and had the advantage of coming from the opposite direction; so, although Crouch dodged and changed his course, his case was hopeless from the first, and it was the work of only a few moments for his pursuers to overtake and capture him.

This might not have been so easily accomplished but for the fact that, when the would-be murderer found that the avenging powers were after him, he hastily pulled off his coat and threw it away to make his progress easier, and his revolver being in one of the pockets, he had nothing with which to defend himself when brought to bay.

When he was led into camp, the look of hatred and malignity he directed at Rich left little doubt as for

"I remember a brave boy," returned Mr. Halstead, heartily shaking the hand he was holding, and smiling with undisguised pleasure, "who doubtless saved Mrs. Halstead a serious fright, if not from a fatal injury, by his courage and presence of mind. I am very glad to meet you again, Mr.

A dozen pairs of hands were ready to assist in binding him, and they were not remarkably tender in the operation, either; after which he was conveyed and secured to a wagon, and a guard set over him to make sure that he did not escape.

When this had been accomplished, Rich sought the gentleman who had rendered such timely assistance in the arrest.

He was a noble-looking man of perhaps forty-three or four years, and Rich was instantly impressed that he had seen him before.

"Pray tell me, sir, to whom we are so indebted," he said, holding out his hand in cordial greeting.

"My name is Halstead," was the reply, "and I was hunting in the woods yonder when I heard the report of a revolver from this direction. Thinking I might find a companion in my sport, I followed the sound, and—the rest you already know."

Rich was surprised that he should have remembered his name, while he noticed that an expression of sadness and an unwonted pallor had swept over his face upon learning who he was.

He presented him to Mrs. Campbell and Grace; then excusing himself, returned to Annie, whose anxious eyes followed him everywhere, as if she could not feel sure that he was safe even now.

It was thought best to return home immediately, for, of course, there could be no more enjoyment after what had occurred.

Northern Arm, Botwood.

February 10th, 1922.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your paper for a few general remarks re the Humbermouth proposition and those who are knocking it. Their forebodings and prognostications no doubt, are well meant, but to the worker who sees through the camouflage, it is simply ludicrous. By the intellectual worker, I mean the worker who understands the force that shaped the course of human society from paleolithic to modern times by the comparatively new method of teaching history, called Economic Determinism. A perusal of history by the old orthodox method, gives the impression that the people who lived in by-gone times were mostly Kings and Queens, and that they were the only people worth mentioning.

But Economic Determinism throws a flood of light on past history of the human race, revealing the force that has sealed the destiny of its various peoples, and is a sure index of where we are and whither tending to-day. Hence it is like singing psalms to a dead horse, talking taxation to the great mass of toilers who, when past their labor must be kept by the nearest relatives or public charity and sink in a paupers' grave, as surely as the earth revolves on its axis.

But as the past is gone and the future is not ours, it is always the ever-present present. What we want at present is employment with a decent living wage. By all means, get this project started, the quicker the better.

Don't mind what the knockers are saying to frighten the common laborer. It is not for the welfare of the common laborer that such a hue and cry is put up, but an eye on the welfare of their own political aspirations to which the common laborer by reason of the franchise cannot be ignored. Figures don't lie, but some liars can figure, and we don't suppose that the Government is such a crowd of fools, and this Co., such a bunch of rogues that they figure on compelling the Government to still pay their 6½ per cent. guarantee, if they violate their end of the contract.

Again I repeat, the bulk of toilers know what is ahead of them as aforesaid. They are waiting and watching for this industry to start, with the prospect of getting employment and a decent living wage.

AWFUL FATE OF TWO SCHOOLBOYS AT SYDNEY MINES

BODIES WERE FOUND AT THE BOTTOM OF OLD NO. THREE COAL SHAFT 24 HOURS AFTER THEY LEFT HOME.

(From N. S. Herald.)

Tragic were the deaths of Johnnie Hollick and John Power, two youths, each about 12 years old, who plunged down an old unused coal shaft at Sydney Mines, presumably on Saturday afternoon, and were either killed outright or died as a result of injury and exposure. Their bruised bodies were recovered yesterday afternoon, more than twenty-four hours after they had left their homes.

The boys, who are sons of Charles Hollick and Murray Power, who reside on the old road leading to Sydney Mines at a place known as the Tank, left home Saturday afternoon. They were overtaken on the road by a man named Collins, who was driving a team in the direction of Sydney Mines. The boys asked for a drive, which was granted, and got off the sleigh when near the old No. 3 shaft, which has been idle for upwards of half a century. That was the last seen of the boys alive, so far as can at present be learned.

Nothing was thought of their absence until supper time, came, when their parents became alarmed and a search was made for their whereabouts. The two boy chums, whose last abouts, which was kept up until early morning. Yesterday forenoon especially to the Power boy, who, it is believed, lived some time after the awful plunge. Slowly and carefully the bodies were hoisted to the surface, where the grief-stricken parents and relatives received them.

The double tragedy has cast a deep gloom over the whole community. Nobody can account for the terrible affair, although the general opinion is the boys were on their way to Sydney Mines and jumped off the sleigh at this particular place in order to take a short cut. It is claimed that in order to get inside the four-foot wire enclosure that surrounds this old shaft it was necessary for the boys to climb over the fence, as there was only a few feet of snow at the northern corner of the shaft.

The pit was covered over, but some time ago a fall-in of the earth occurred and the Scotia officials, in order to safeguard against trespassers, erected the wire fence. However, there will likely be a full and complete probe into the dreadful affair, when all facts in connection with the case will be learned. In the meantime coroner Francis will hold an inquest, which will commence this evening at Sydney Mines.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, SATURDAY, MARCH 11th, 1922

The War Office Flag

Before the formal opening of the House Tuesday afternoon, we understand that the King's Colours presented to the Royal Newfoundland Regiment by the British War Office, will be installed over the President's Chair in the Legislative Council with suitable ceremony by His Excellency the Governor.

This will likely take place at 2.40 p.m., the opening of the House being set for 3 p.m. The flag is a silk one, being a Union Jack, in the centre of which is the Crown surmounting a circle, in which is printed "The First Royal Newfoundland Regiment." We think a similar flag was presented to the Regiment by Lodge Dudley on behalf of the Sons of England of Newfoundland.

This flag will remain in the Legislative Council, as a memorial forever of the valour of the men of Newfoundland, who thought no sacrifice too great when the call to service came from the Motherland.

The Surplus Wheat Idea

It is interesting to follow the ways which are being advocated in other countries in an attempt to give the producer a decent price for his product.

The following extract shows a scheme of the U. S. farmers for their Government to take over the surplus wheat in order that the price may be obtained. We have not seen that this plan has been discussed seriously, but, as we have said, it is interesting to us, as this country is just as anxious to get a fair price for fish as the farmers are to get a good price for wheat. Here is the extract:

CHICAGO, Feb. 22, (United Press).—Purchase by the Government of the surplus wheat of the country in order to stabilize market is provided for in a measure proposed to individual members of the Senate farm bloc by mid-western farm leaders.

Under the proposed bill the fixed price for purchase of the surplus would be $1.50 per bushel.

Herbert J. Browne, Washington, D.C., tax specialist, who attended the Farmer-Laborer conference here, stated:

"The plan calls for purchase of all surplus wheat, estimated between seventy and one hundred million bushels, the wheat to be stored in Government terminal elevators.

"This wheat would be used by the Government when necessary, but at all times the supply is to be kept up to be used in case of a large crop failure or in case of a famine.

"The old wheat would be fed out for the new and the supply would be sort of insurance to the nation."

Fixing the price at $1.50 would mean an estimated saving of 47 cents per bushel to the farmer because of price stabilization, according to Browne. He estimates the total saving to the farmers in wheat alone would be $28,000,000 annually, and that the effect upon other grains would mean an additional saving of approximately the same amount to the farmers.

AN INNOVATION

We understand that the Internal Economy Committee will probably inaugurate a new system with regard to the printing of Bills for the Legislature. The custom has been that Bills when introduced in the House, were printed by the office which looked after the general printing of the House, then another office would reprint them for the Upper House, and eventually the Royal Gazette would print them for purposes of record.

The proposal now is that one office, in this case, say the Gazette, will print the Bills for both Houses, thus making for economy (as there will be but one setting instead of three), and making less possible errors that sometimes crept in under the old system. The solicitor of the House has recommended this change, and all amended printings will come directly under his notice.

Not A Gloomy Dean

"A certain bishop wanted to impress on his candidate how to act in the case of a sick man, and went to lie down on a sofa in an adjoining room, and bade the candidates come one by one in order to give a practical demonstration.

"They were nervous, so a big Irishman volunteered to go in first. 'Just leave it to me,' he found the bishop on the sofa with a wrap over him, and, holding up his hands, exclaimed, 'Oh, Timothy, Timothy drunk again!'"

The above is one of the good stories told by Dr. J. W. Leigh, late Dean of Hereford and uncle of Owen Wister, the famous American author, in "Other Days" (Fisher Unwin).

In Ireland, at a military dinner at the Viceroy's Lodge, Dr. Leigh met Bob Williams, "who was attached to the Court, in what capacity I know not—unless it was Court jester."

Editor Who Liked Puns.

"He was the originator of a very old chestnut which has appeared from time to time. The Secretary for Ireland was then Lord Naas, and as such was Controller of the Zoo in Phoenix Park. He had gone up to London, and when there received a telegram from the keeper of the Zoo: 'The emu has laid an egg, and in the absence of your lordship we have placed it under the biggest goose we could secure.'"

Sir F. C. Burnand, the famous editor of Punch, was an inveterate punster. In Knightsbridge some time ago, Dr. Leigh tells us, there was a church squeezed between two public houses, held by two licensed victuallers named Evans and Weston.

The curious position of the church was brought to Burnand's notice by a friend as they walked by. "Ah, yes," said Burnand, "and note, 'even's on one side and wats-on the other!'"

James Weston, a famous American teetotal advocate, had a keen sense of humour. At one temperance meeting he was holding, a man came up to him and said, "How are you, Mr. Weston?"

"Quite well, thank you, sir," Weston replied.

"Do you know who I am?" said the man. "I am a converted wife-beater, a converted drunkard, and a converted dog-stealer, and a converted pugilist. What do you think of them?"

"Well," answered Weston, "I guess there is one thing you are not, and that is a converted liar."

THE INHUMANITY OF THE DIVORCE LAW

(By O. HADMAN)

The Rutherford case brings into prominence once more one of the horrible cruelties of the present divorce law (writes a Daily Herald correspondent).

Miss Rutherford's husband has been convicted of murder and is detained in a lunatic asylum, but the law insists that she must continue to be his lawful wife.

As Dr. Robert Jones, with 30 years' practice as an alienist physician, pointed out in evidence before the Royal Commission on Divorce,

"The State steps in and 'restrains' the sufferer against his will. It takes its own will and imposes it upon him, it disposes of his property, releases him from certain obligations, but binds him in matrimony to the detriment of his family and the State."

Dr. Jones added that under analogous conditions the State consents to the nullity of a marriage—when by

That Threat

Yesterday's Daily News contains a most exciting spasm from that fesus homo Johannes, who quite recently has been given access to the columns of the Tory organ, under the nom de plume of Bondite. It was really enough to make one shiver, when we read the closing sentence of his letter on yesterday morn. For the benefit of the thousands of Advocate readers, who never see the Daily News we quote Bondite's terrible threat of annihilation. Here it is: "The sooner the Coakerite organ ceases to hurl its shafts of ridicule at Sir Robert Bond the better for that paper and all concerned with it. If the Advocate wants to swallow a greater dish of crow than it will, as far as the Reids are concerned, let it continue to revile Sir Robert Bond and I shall deal with the Coakerite 'himd men.'"

Bondite does not disclose how he purposes to deal with the Coaker hired men. He will, I hope, be sport enough to let us make ample preparation ere we are done to death by "Bondite." But really, young man, we do not take you seriously. The atrocious crime of being "a hired men" we shall neither attempt to palliate or deny," for the very good reason, that in order to work, you must first be hired, and in Newfoundland as elsewhere, those who work for a living are regarded as respectable citizens, no matter what form their occupation may take. There is another class which never toil, never did toil, and if they can help it, never intend to. But enough said.

If "Bondite" thinks he can help "kill" Hon. W. F. Coaker by coupling his name with the Reid Nfld. Co. or its individual members, then all we can say for him and the puppet sheet which for years has hounded and vilified the F. P. U., its President and its members, and Sir Robert Bond, is "thou fools."

He does not stand in shoe leather in this country to-day, who can honestly assert and prove that Coaker, during the nine years he has been in the lime-light of our public affairs has been guilty of a single act, which can in the slightest degree be construed into an attempt to personally profit one cent because of the wonderful political power and prestige he holds as Leader of the Fishermen, the wealth producers of Newfoundland. True, he has made mistakes; what man worth his salt in public or private life has not? The hoary pages of history are filled with such examples, and in the public of Newfoundland their name is legion.

It will be cold comfort for poor Bondite, if we have to point out that his dear Sir Robert was perhaps the greatest mistake of them all, when it comes to dealing with the Reids: to wit the 1901 contract. Just one little item for to-day—we quote from the Daily News of Feb. 4th, 1905: "Telegraph award against the Colony. The Reid Co. get $1,503,000 with interest and expenses which means about $1,900,000, or an annual interest of $66,500." To those who are honestly concerned in measuring the Daily News Editor's estimation of Sir Robert Bond as a statesman we say read the News during this period; then decide for yourselves whether the ased statesman at Whitbourne ever did, or could associate himself politically with a party having as its mouthpiece the Daily News. We think not.

The public following the newspaper controversy on the Humber Proposition was struck at first with the universal opinion of all that some such work was absolutely essential; but a howl went up in certain sections against a Government guarantee.

If we read aright, both Tory papers have since been clubbed or chloroformed into direct opposi-

Dear Sir,—Please grant me space in your columns to congratulate the Government and particularly so Hon. W. F. Many of the outsiders' lamps are gone out for want of oil, and it looks as if they are compelled to come in; and I believe before long it will be a bigger fire than ever because they see our good captain is taking the best course to uplift the toilers in every respect. Benefit Night at The Prince's Rink

Before a very small gathering of spectators the annual benefit for the ice men at the Prince's Rink was run off last night. The attendance was the smallest on record and the receipts will only average about $15 per mat.

The sports program, however, was most elaborate and the various events were well contested, records being made in the half mile and three mile races, the former being won by J. M. Tobin in 1 min. 55 4-5 sec., and the latter was carried off by J. Chancey in 11 min. 54 3-5 sec.

The ice was in splendid condition despite the recent mild spurt and those who attended fully enjoyed the program.

After the sports general skating was permitted, the music being furnished by Bennett's Band. It is likely that in view of last night's poor attendance another benefit will be arranged before the season closes. The following was the programme and winners:

Half Mile Ladies—1st, Miss Rose Hart; 2nd, Miss L. Thomas. Time 2 min. 27 2-5 sec.

Half Mile (Senior)—1st, J. M. Tobin; 2nd, J. Chancey. Time 1 min. 55 4-5 sec.

Hockey Match—St. Bon's vs. M.C. and B.F.C. Won by St. Bon's, 2-0.

Half Mile (Junior)—1st, J. Hartley (Mt. Cashel); 2nd, M. Garland and G. Bailey (a dead heat).

3 Mile (Senior)—1st, J. Chancey; 2nd, P. Coxworthy. Time 11 min. 54 3-5 sec.

Half Mile (Junior, a run-off)—1st, M. Garland, Time 2 min. 6 4-5 sec.

The prizes for the various events were very generously donated by Messrs. G. Trainor, J. M. Tobin, J. Pedigrew, P. E. Outerbridge and W. Clouston.

"Briton" Sale Continues Next Week

The great auction sale on board the 'Briton' is being continued to-day by Messrs Dowden and Edwards, and crowds as large, if not larger, than yesterday's are on the spot to take advantage of the extraordinary bargains that are going.

Yesterday morning the stores were disposed of at prices which render many of them a gift and to-day clothing and other articles were sold.

Owing to the shortness of the time that can be devoted to selling each day, the auctioneers have found it necessary to extend the period of the sale over several days of next week as a large percentage of the best of the articles yet remain to be disposed of.

This is undoubtedly the greatest offering of household necessities the city has seen for a long time and many fine articles of furniture, plate stores etc., are going at sacrifice prices.

Interesting Case Was Withdrawn

The action taken in the Supreme Court by Philip F. Moore against R. T. McGrath was taken off the docket on motion of Mr. C. E. Hunt, counsel for the plaintiff.

The case created considerable discussion in political circles and it was said that had it gone on, some sensational disclosures would have resulted and that several persons connected or associated with the late Cashin government would have been involved.

This action, taken by Mr. Moore, arose out of a dispute between him and Mr. McGrath as to the amount the latter was to pay the former in connection with a grant for certain timber limits on the South Coast given Mr. McGrath during the term of office of the Cashin government. It will be remembered that last year Mr. McGrath took action against the Marytown Trading Co. for trespass on these limits.

It seems that the Trading Co., who operated a mill on the South Coast, had been cutting timber over these areas before they were granted to Mr. McGrath and they continued to cut there after the lands passed into other hands. Mr. McGrath got judgment from the court in this action and it was over the settling up between Messrs. McGrath and Moore that the disagreement arose.

A number of witnesses had been summoned for to-day and it was said that in making up his claim the plaintiff would find it necessary to introduce the names of at least two members of the Cashin Government as well as that of a legal gentleman not in the party but closely identified with it.

Evidently it was thought better in the interests of all concerned not to have the matter aired in all its phases in open court.

Catholic University Erect Nine Buildings

With the expenditure of several million dollars, approximately twenty-seven imposing university buildings will dot the 270-acre tract of the Catholic University at Brookland. It was announced last night at the annual banquet of the Washington Chapter, Catholic University Lay Alumni Association at the City Club.

Work on the university church and a library will begin in the near future, the Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the university, said. Extension of the Maloney chemical laboratory and additional dormitories to accommodate the increasing student body also will be made. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. George A. Dougherty, vice rector, also spoke of the plans for the extension of university buildings, Charles V. Morar, director of athletics, told of the plans in the southern intercollegiate conference, for which the university has applied for membership.

[Newfoundlanders should be interested in the progress of the Catholic University of America. It has in its staff as Professor of History and Editor of its excellent Catholic Historical Review, Rev. Dr. P. W. Browne, of Carbonear, and there are two Newfoundland Sisters of the Presentation Order enrolled amongst the attendants at its affiliated Sisters' College where Dr. Browne is also a member of the teaching staff.]

Address Delivered by The Rev. Canon Smart, R.D., to the Members of Heart's Content Lodge No. 1, S. U. F.

NEWFOUNDLAND
GOODS.

In the early fall of 1904 anyone passing in through the Cove entrance of a retail provision store could have observed a clergyman in animated conversation with one of the partners of the business. A stiesman who was serving a clergyman stood by. "Your assistant," said the parson, "tells me that you no longer handle 'Housewife' soap." "No," replied the business man, "we are now carrying a soap made in St. John's, as we have a fairly big interest in the concern that manufactures it." "I am sorry, but the wife gave strict orders to bring none of that St. John's made soap. She finds that what the women of the settlement say is perfectly correct, the soap no sooner goes into the water than it becomes a mass of sloppy slush." "A MASS OF SLOPPY SLUSH, EH?" the man of business rather testily replied, "you may tell the wife that and the women of the settlement that 'WE WILL MAKE A GOOD SOAP YET.'"

The tag used by the stamping clerks at the General Post Office in 1922 is proof enough that the merchant's declaration has been made good. Buy and use any of the soaps made to-day by the 'Standard Manufacturing Co.' and any unbiased user will tell you they bear comparison with those manufactured elsewhere. The clergyman's wife now uses soap made in Newfoundland, and no longer craves for the Gossage 'Housewife' soap.

'Sloppy Slush' of 1904 Versus Excellent Soap in 1922.

How can we account for the change from 'sloppy slush' of 1904 to the excellent soap of 1922? Firstly, because of the basic conviction that Newfoundland could only come into her own by developing the local resources of men and materials—the chief resource being men. Secondly, the men who held that conviction had their money as well as their honour, invested in the manufacturing concern. "Money talks: honour impels." These men backed their convictions with their cash, and pledged their honour to those whom they induced to invest with them, so that they must make good in order to get returns on their investments, and preserve their honour. Thirdly, this basic conviction, and these personal interests of money and honour resulted in indefatigable endeavours to secure reliable raw materials, the best possible machinery, the most effective methods, the keenest workers and the ablest of managers. The manager knew, and in no mere academic sense, that it could only be after repeated effort that the finest article would be produced. Repeated efforts grounded on greater knowledge, a more perfect accuracy in details, long continuous labour, with a persevering education of every worker on the plant from A to Z, must ultimately overcome difficulties and establish perfection.

We have reached the day when local manufactures, supported by local capital, carried on by local men who have made good, and are not without honour in the country of their production. The splendid coating of paint on this Hall is as convincing a proof of that, as is the soap with which this floor was scrubbed.

GOODS MADE IN NEWFOUNDLAND HAVE PROVEN GOOD:

—People Buy And Use Them—
If the Standard Manufacturing Co. had not made good the merchant's declaration that "we will make a good soap yet," people would not have continued to buy and use it. The goods have proven good, people buy, use and recommend them.

SOME P.P. OF "THE LITTLE COLLEGE" ON FOREST ROAD.

—A Succession of Well-Qualified Principals—have presided over the destinies of Queen's College—"The Little College round the Corner." It was Bishop Feild's dream that the institution where the students could live with the Principal would be the means of producing men duly, and fully, qualified for the Sacred Ministry in the Diocese. Those who love the College, and not least those who revere it as their Alma Mater, acknowledge that the 'statesman Bishop's' dream has not, even yet, been fully realized. It must be confessed that it has never—to use the epithet which has been hurled against the College—been more than a 'one-man show.' Yet those who love Queen's College are able to confess, and thankfully do so, that a wise Providence has raised up a succession of good men—the world might reckon them average men—to preside over, and guide, its destinies. It may be true that most of these College Principals have been teachers and trainers of men, rather than organizers of material resources. It is true, too, that these Principals have been, without exception, men well-qualified to develop the Church's greatest resources, "Men for the Sacred Ministry." Indeed that was the raison d'être of their being College Principals. These men felt that it was the work, and the duty, of other men to develop the financial resources of the Church, and find money to train the men. In all the long succession of Principals there have been only two, previous to the present occupant of the position, who have been double-barralled men, i.e., men as capable of organizing material resources as they were of developing the intellectual and spiritual parts of the students entrusted to their care.

The first of these was the 'facile princeps' of clerical organizers, and a devoted parish priest, the Reverend Joseph J. Curling, M.A., whose name and 'good works' will never be forgotten while Bay of Islands is on the map. The second, the Rev. Charles Knapp, D.D., the second scholar, the inspirer of his students to high purposes, the builder of the Principal's Lodge, a very necessary addition to the College. Among the Principals, since Bishop Jones' succession to the Bishopric, are such men as the Rev. Edwin Davis, M.A., Ambrose Heygate, of whom it was said "the longer you knew him the better you liked him," Robert Holland-Taylor, B.D., Charles Knapp, D.D., Thomas Wilson, M.A., the keen logician the deep thinker, the man of many tongues and, as his students and their after careers bear witness, the man, 'par excellence,' who taught his students to really love learning for its own sake, and Conrad Barton, M.A., the master of the spiritual life; the mighty intercessor. No body of men, in any walk of life, ever worked more devotedly, conscientiously, and successfully in the interests of the 'concern' than did these poorly remunerated College Principals. All alike were actuated by the highest of motives—that of being careful imitators of the Great Teacher and Trainer of the first body of recruits for the Christian Ministry. They were also animated by the strongest of incentives—that of producing such results as would, not only satisfy the expectations of their ecclesiastical superior, the Bishop of the Diocese, but would 'stand the board' in the Great Day of final testing. These Principals produced on the whole.

Little College round the Corner"—more than 140 all told. Average men, Yes! average men. This is true of most of them. It is equally true that the victories of Christ's Church, from Pentecost on, have been won by average men under the leadership of average men. The Queen's College trained parsons that are here singled out as illustrations to prove a point, appeared to the men of their day as "average men" doing the average outport parson's work. Who of us can express in terms of dollars and cents, or devotion and service, the sum total of what those average men trained at "The Little College round the Corner" have accomplished for Christ, for Church, for Community?

Archdeacon Botwood—Pioneer in Economic and Moral Progress.

First take Edward Botwood—there was a period in his career when he was not the Rector of a city parish; the Ecclesiastical dignitary; the valued counsellor of Bishop and Synod Executive; the 'power behind' much civic and national progressiveness. He was first the hard-working missionary at Forteau on the Labrador side of the Straits of Belle Isle. I leave out of account in this address the spiritual and intellectual values of his ministerial life and centre on what he did for the economic and moral uplift of the Country. Go to the Deputy Minister of Customs and Finance and ascertain the value in dollars and cents of the lumbering industry of Newfoundland to-day. Look behind the screen of dollars and visualize the comfort and contentment, the moral and mental uplift, the push and progress, the incentive and inspiration that are the direct and acknowledged results of that industry. What have the things here enumerated to do with the parson trained at the despatch, "Little College round the Corner"—Queen's College, Forest Road, St. John's? Much every way. Was not Edward Botwood a worthy son of Queen's College, an alumnus she will always honour, one of the earliest men to show his faith in the resources of Newfoundland and to back his faith with his money and his influence. The Vallance & Winsor steam saw mill at Dominion Point, on the Exploits River, blazed the trail for the Horwoods.

Ice Bound Prospero Gets Thorough Overhaul

MAROONED CREW ARE EXPT BUSY ON SHIP'S REPAIRS

INSPECTOR COYELL REACHES CITY

That Capt. John Field of the ice-bound coastal steamer Prospero is making a virtue of necessity is evidenced by the story told by Herring Inspector E. Coyell who has just reached the city from the jammed ship.

Mr. Coyell left the Prospero on Tuesday morning, and owing to having his toes frostbitten early in the winter, had a hard time travelling over the rough ice to Lewisporte where he connected with the train for St. John's. He reports the Prospero very firmly held in the ice 3 miles off Exploits and it will require a very heavy swell before the ship can be released. In places the ice has rafted to a thickness of over twenty feet.

The ship is hemmed in with land on both sides and it will take more than an ordinary gale to free her. Early in February it looked as if the steamer would be released and Captain Field and his crew did everything possible but all to no use. Powder was used to blast the ice, and the Prospero reached to within a quarter of a mile of the open water when the wind changed.

RENOVATING SHIP.

Altho the steamer is jammed the crew are by no means idle. All parts of the ship are receiving a thorough and systematic renovating. Chief Steward Grills and his staff are going through the ship's saloons and passenger accommodation, and the staterooms and pantries are being made like new. The cabinets in the staterooms, which have not been touched since the ship was built, have been taken out, scraped and sandpapered and varnished and grained. The saloon has also been painted and decorated and everything in this department presents a very fine appearance.

Chief Engineer McKinley and the engine room staff have also been busy. The engines have been overhauled and necessary repairs effected. The winches have also been taken abroad, new packing put in and the mechanical part of the ship is now in order for the next twelve months.

The deck staff have also been kept busy, the hull and upper structure have been cleaned up and painted and otherwise put in condition.

Captain Field and his officers are ever on the watch both night and day to see if any openings in the ice have made their appearance or if there is any possibility of freeing the ship.

Her herring cargo is in good condition and no leakage has occurred. In the presence of Inspector Coyell, Purser White had some of the barrels opened last week and they were then in No. 1 condition and as good as when first caught. The Inspector says that they will not be affected in the least and are as safe as if they were in the best store available.

The Prospero has plenty of food on board and any lines that run short, such as meat and vegetables, are sent from St. John's and taken by teams over the ice from Exploits. Papers are much sought after by those on board, and magazines and periodicals are always welcomed and help the crew in their spare time.

There is sufficient coal on board to enable the steamer to reach St. John's when she gets clear, and in order to save this coal, wood is being used in the galley and in the donkey boiler which supplies the only steam necessary on the ship.

There is still one passenger on board Mr. William Templeman of Bonaville who is unable to face the trip over the ice to Lewisporte, and will remain on the steamer till the ice breaks up in the spring.

Capt. Field, all his officers and crew are enjoying the best of health, and are anxiously waiting for the day when the Prospero will be able to get out of the jam.

The Sable I. is due here early Monday morning from Halifax via Louisbourg with mails and passengers.

Left to mourn her are her two sons, the Rev. Dr. Greene of the R. C. Palace, St. John's, and Mr. Joseph M. Greene one of the officials of the D.I.S. Co., Wabana, Bell Island and one sister Miss Ellen Mary Gleeson residing with her.
